Let It Be Cast Takes a Magical Mystery Tour to Abbey Road

Cast takes a break from rehearsals to recreate iconic Beatles picture on 49th anniversary

The cast of Let It Be: A Celebration of the Music of the Beatles took a break from rehearsals in London this morning (Wednesday 8 August) to become Day Trippers on a Magical Mystery Tour to recreate one of The Beatles'™ most iconic images ahead of their trip to Hull this Autumn.

At 11.30am, 49 years to the day and the exact time when the world-famous Abbey Road crossing photograph was captured by Scottish photographer Iain Macmillan on 8 August 1969, Let It Be's™ very own Fab Four donned their costumes to follow in the footsteps of the biggest band in music history and recreate the iconic album cover picture.

Michael Gagliano who plays John Lennon in the production, a role he has already made his own in the new Let It Be show in North America, Canada and Japan said: "To stand on the Abbey Road crossing exactly 49 years to the day and time since John, Paul, George and Ringo did just that, and being dressed as they were, is mind blowing. I'm sure they would never have imagined that almost half a century later people would still be visiting the crossing to recreate that iconic album cover picture for themselves."

Michael Gagliano will be joined by Emanuele Angeletti (Paul McCartney); John Brosnan (George Harrison); and Ben Cullingworth (Ringo Starr) as the smash hit show Let It Be: A Celebration of the Music of the Beatles returns to stages across the UK and Ireland with a new updated show. Fans are invited to join John, Paul, George and Ringo for a great night of live music "from the beginnings to the height of Beatlemania.

In a twist from the original Let It Be show, audiences will then be invited to Imagine what it would be like to see The Beatles reunite for one night only.

The second act is set a decade after The Beatles went their separate ways. It gives fans a rare glimpse of how the Fab Four once again Come Together to perform the concert that never was!
